

Introduced to powerlifting in high school, Erin Waltermann never looked back. During her career she has competed in equipped, raw, and bench only contests. Between 2001 and 2014 she competed in six National Championships and two Arnold Classics.

Through a local gym she met great group of people who took her under their wing and trained her in strongman. Thanks to this support, she was able to attend and win two National Strongman championships.

Currently Erin is focusing on raw powerlifting and training for the Wisconsin State Powerlifting Open contest. She also became a state certified referee this year.